

Can you give feral cats a safe outdoor home?

As long as a feral cat is healthy, it will live happily outside. The RSPCA supports the trapping and neutering of feral cats where local charities have the capacity to do so.

Feral cats are trapped humanely, neutered and health-checked and settled into a new location with temporary sleeping quarters, food and litter so they can live out their natural lives without contributing to a population explosion.

If you are able to offer a suitable rural situation for the relocation of feral cats,

Relocated feral cats will catch vermin on farms and at stables etc. In fact feral cats can provide efficient and environmentally friendly pest control – a safe alternative to poisoning or trapping.
